Sickness insurance for Swiss returning home

The Swiss sickness insurance schemes do not all participate in the application of the bilateral social security conventions and the agreement with the Organization of the Swiss Abroad. Swiss returning home and wishing to be insured against sickness should therefore ask for:

1 a list of the schemes which apply the bilateral convention in question, if they come from a country with which Switzerland has concluded a convention containing provisions which facilitate transfer to a Swiss sickness insurance scheme;

2 a list of the schemes which apply the agreement with the Organization of the Swiss Abroad, if they come from a country with which Switzerland has not concluded a convention containing provisions which facilitate transfer to a Swiss sickness insurance scheme, or if they do not fulfil all the conditions required by such a convention.

Those concerned can apply either to the competent Swiss Embassy or Consulate or to the Federal Office for Social Insurance, CH-3003 Berne.

Agreement between Switzerland and Austria on collaboration in the consular field

The agreement between Switzerland and Austria on collaboration in the consular field, signed by the two Foreign Ministers on 3rd September 1979, came into force on 1st January 1980. It was concluded with a view to affording as much protection and assistance as possible to the nationals of the two countries. The agreement therefore provides that Switzerland and Austria shall afford consular protection and assistance to the nationals of the other State in countries where the latter is not represented at all or is represented only in an honorary capacity. The duration of the agreement was limited to two years initially, with the possibility of an extension.

For the «TRIAL PERIOD» of the agreement (1st January 1980 to 31st December 1981) the two contracting parties selected the following countries:

1. Austria (protection and assistance for nationals of Switzerland and Liechtenstein)

Afghanistan

Austrian Embassy, Kabul

Greece (Island of Crete)

Austrian Consulate, Heraklion

France (French Polynesia)

Austrian Consulate, Papeete (Tahiti)

Zambia

Austrian Consulate, Lusaka (in the sense of support for the administrator of the Swiss Consulate there)

2. Switzerland (protection and assistance for Austrian nationals)

Rwanda

Swiss Embassy, Kigali

Bangladesh

Swiss Embassy, Dacca

Guinea

Swiss Embassy, Conakry

The protection and assistance afforded by the Austrian missions are of limited scope. Details can be obtained from the missions concerned.

Consular protection and assistance are granted in accordance with the principle of equal treatment, that is to say, the Swiss national is entitled to such help as would, under the Austrian regulations in force, be afforded to an Austrian national. This means that he may not always receive as much protection and assistance as would be provided by a Swiss mission. Only individuals are entitled to the protection and assistance provided for by this agreement; corporate bodies are excluded.

The addresses of the competent Austrian missions covered by the agreement are as follows:

Swiss mother – foreign child?

Attention – Don't miss the closing date!

The application must be submitted by 30th April 1981 if your child is to become a Swiss national. This is conditional upon your child having been under 22 years of age on 1st January 1978 (children born after that date are automatically Swiss nationals) and upon you, as a Swiss by descent (this also covers women who, as children, were included in their parents' naturalization or whose naturalization was facilitated independently), having been domiciled in Switzerland with your foreign husband at the time of the child's birth. The application must be submitted to the competent authorities of your canton of origin. Children whose request has already been rejected once can also apply again. You can obtain more detailed information from your Swiss Embassy or Consulate or from the Federal Department of Justice and Police, CH-3003 Berne.

preventing abuses. It also keeps the compensation fund's accounts and acts as the unemployment insurance scheme's compensation office.

Occupational Training

The Occupational Training Division is the official organ for the enforcement of the Occupational Training Act. Within the framework of that Act, which, in particular, regulates apprenticeships, this Division draws up the regulations concerning training and examinations (which are then promulgated by the Federal Department of Public Economy) and the relevant syllabuses. It is responsible for the supervision of the apprenticeship examinations and higher specialist examinations organized by the trade associations and also looks after the vast field of further occupational training. The Swiss Institute for Occupational Teaching, founded in 1972, collaborates closely with the Occupational Training Division. Its main task is the training and advanced training of vocational teachers.

Crafts

The Crafts Section enforces – or supervises the enforcement of – various federal Acts concerning industry, commerce and crafts in the widest sense (legislation on commercial travellers, sureties for craftsmen etc.). Among its most important functions are measures for the promotion of the economy. In particularly threatened regions where the economy is too dependent on one branch of industry it supports plans for innovation and diversification by means of credit guarantees, contributions to interest charges and tax reliefs. It also handles questions relating to the watch and clock industry (official quality control, marks of origin).

Economic Development

The newest division of BIGA is the Central Office for Regional Economic Development. It is responsible for the conception and execution of Swiss regional policy. The aim of this policy, together with land planning, is to promote balanced regional development. The most important work done by the Central Office so far has been the implementation of the overall plan for the economic development of the mountain regions.

Social Statistics

To enable the authorities to take economic and socio-political decisions, the Social Statistics Division regularly produces a number of statistics concerning, in particular, the labour market, employment, production, building, wages, prices and consumption.

Federal Office for Industry, Crafts and Labour (BIGA)

50 years

BIGA, one of the most important offices of the Federal Department of Public Economy, was 50 years old on 1st January 1980. It deals mainly with matters concerning the domestic economy. The following survey outlines its principal functions.

Employee Protection and Labour Law

Regulations for the protection of employees against over-work and accidents at work are among the Office's oldest responsibilities. Its Employee Protection Division, in conjunction with the four Federal Labour Inspectorates in Lausanne, Aarau, Zurich and St. Gallen, supervises the enforcement of the Labour Act. Problems of industrial medicine and hygiene are dealt with by the Industrial Medical Service. Questions relating to working hours and time off, special protection for juvenile and female employees and the protection of home-workers are also handled by the Employee Protection and Labour Law Division; so are matters connected with the Labour Act, of which the most important concern the procedure for extending the application of collective employment contracts and for the issue by the Confederation of standard employment contracts. The subject of worker participation, too, falls within this Division's sphere of activity.

Labour Market Policy

The Manpower and Emigration Division deals principally with questions of labour market policy. Its duty is to ensure that the labour market is as balanced as possible. To this end it works closely with the labour offices of the cantons and large towns, and with both sides of industry. Among its tasks are measures to combat unemployment, policy on foreign workers, encouragement of the provision of part-time work and home-work, the reintegration of female and disabled workers and the exchange of young people for further training abroad. Finally, the Office runs an extensive Advisory Service for Emigrants and helps Swiss returning from abroad who have difficulty in finding jobs.

Unemployment Insurance

Unemployment insurance is one of the mainstays of social security for the employee. The introduction on 1st April 1977 of compulsory unemployment insurance, the so-called transitional regulations, was a first decisive step towards a modern and efficient system of unemployment insurance. The unemployment Insurance Division supervises the enforcement of the Federal Unemployment Insurance Act; it is responsible for ensuring that the Act is applied as uniformly as possible and for
