Local Communications

We have been in a position to exceptionally extend the LOCAL NEWS in this issue to 9 pages.

Dear compatriots, as successor of Ambassador Henri Rossi, who has retired and now lives in his native Valais, I have recently arrived in Canberra and presented my credentials to the Governor-General on 11th March.

I wish to extend my cordial greetings to all Swiss living in Australia and Papua New Guinea, and I am looking forward to meeting many of you in the coming years.

Alfred R. Glesti

Ambassador Glesti was born and brought up in Winterthur/ZH. He is a citizen of that town as well as of Kaltenbach/TG.

He studied at the St-Gall Graduate School of Economics (lic.rer.publ.) and the Geneva Graduate Institute of International Studies before he joined the diplomatic service in 1957. Since then he has served in Paris, Berne, Tokyo and New York (UN). The last ten years he has spent in Berne in the Federal Department of Foreign Affairs, first as Head of Personnel and later as Secretary General (Administrative Director).

Ambassador Glesti is married and father of two sons and a daughter.

THE SWISS AND AUSTRALIA 200 years of Swiss participation in the cultural and political, economic and social life of the 5th Continent 1788-1988

This might (might!) be the title of a comprehensive, nicely printed and illustrated study to be published as a contribution to the Australian Bi-centenary, researched and realised by professionals with the help of Swiss all over the country and back home, and with the administrative support of the Embassy and our Consular representations. The study could also be the basis of an exhibition to be shown in Australia as well as in Switzerland.

Ambassador Glesti, Lady Stephen, Mrs. Glesti and the Governor General Sir Ninian Stephen on 11th March, 1985

This is only an idea. Nothing has been done yet, no material gathered, no money collected, no committee has yet been established, "Berne" not been contacted. It's just an idea — what do you think about it?

CANBERRA

SWISS CLUB OF CANBERRA

President: Mr George Brunner
GPO Box 603,
Canberra City 2601
Tel. 86 3718 A.H.

The new Swiss Ambassador, Mr. Glesti, has arrived in Canberra in March 1985; he is the Patron of the Swiss Club.

Our Winzerfest/Wine bottling festival early in March was very successful. We sold about 600 litres of red and white wine. Our thanks to the hosts of this function, Ken and Kathrina Heydon. Although the numbers might have been down from previous years everybody present enjoyed the Schueblig and Potatosalad, the grapes and cheese and of course did taste the wine. We were all thankful for the shady trees in the courtyard, especially the lady in the Gotthelf-Tracht (Swiss National Costume) and the six-week-old puppy King Charles; it was a very hot Saturday afternoon.

Our next big event is scheduled for July 13, when we meet at the Lithuanian-Australian Club for the Cheese Fondue and Film evening. We have to limit the number of tickets, so be early and book as soon as possible for this popular night or you might miss out.

The Swiss National Day will be celebrated by the Canberra Swiss community on Sunday, 4th August. Toni and Lina Shlager again offer the facilities of their farm "Banjo" near Captains Flat, where a hube bon fire will help them forget the damage that was caused early in the year by one of the many bushfires that ravaged the area.

We have now completed five months with our Gerant Peter Kaegi and we are pleased to announce that both parties are extremely happy. Peter has proved to be a very professional and capable Manager. The food, the service and the atmosphere are excellent.

Walter Dick

An artist who gets up every morning at five o'clock to feed his pigs and to make Swiss cheese must undoubtedly have a special personality. Nobody expects art works that are to be found in art galleries and art books out of the kitchen of a cheese factory owner. Why?

Born in 1950 and grown up in the Swiss Toggenburg Valley, Walter Dick started to express his artistic talent by doing a series of pen-and-ink drawings at the age of 13. Like his father he took up the profession of a cheese maker. In addition to that, he produced drawings, started on lithography and ended up with etching an old printing method, which is known nowadays by a few specialized artists only.

Walter Dick learned his skill as an etcher all by himself and has reached an astonishingly high level of quality and perfection in this demanding technique. His works, directly etched on copper-plates, are primarily just roughly drafted on a piece of paper. Then the artist uses his imagination to produce these fascinating pieces of art. Such work requires enormous patience and diligence.

Since 1977 Walter Dick has been working in cooperation with the copperplate printing studio of Hedy Weber in Zurich. It is one of the scarce studios in Europe where polychrome prints of the highest quality are produced. Printer and artist often work for days just to set up the different colour proofs for one single sheet. Complicated etching and printing techniques are needed to create the final etching. The quality of the printing paper is also well considered. Based on personal experiments and formulas, the paper maker Heini Schneider created a special hand-scooped paper.

Walter Dick knows how to bring his rural life in the countryside in relation to the formal representation of his pictures. The character of his etchings is apparently determined by two different worlds. But these worlds only seem to be conflicting, because they make apparent a gentle interplay of contrasts in his countrysides so meticulously carved out; contrasts that try to express the most intimate thoughts of the artist. Elements of tension, which seem to dissolve into power, are created from quiet rural motifs that fit magically into the countryside. It is a kind of hide-and-seek between tree and water, between a fixed place and free motion. Walter Dick avoids with remarkable consistency to picture human beings. You get the impression he creates living spaces that have just been deserted. But they are still living spaces. Many details seem to hide somebody in the background. You feel requested to add to the pictures what he has kept hidden, not because something is missing, but because you are awed by the invisible.
