Aerial photography. Swiss balloonist Eduard Spelterini (1852–1931) was famous throughout Europe. From 1893, he used his balloon flights to take aerial photographs. He was the first person to fly over the Alps and take pictures of them. He immortalised Swiss cities, but also landscapes and locations in Egypt, the Orient and South Africa. His photographs have now been printed in book form for the very first time. The illustrated book is published in English and German and can be ordered at www.scheidegger-spiess.ch
