Editorial. Dear Readers in the United States

The first step I take when starting to put together the next issue of Swiss Review, is to make a list of all the articles. And this time it is obvious that several were written after the summer vacation. "Nailed at the Bodensee," relates the adventure with a flat tire, and the Zweiacher family went in search of their roots. My husband and I were part of the wonderful "Singing Tour de Suisse" of the mixed Los Angeles choir "Harmonie". All have the same thing in common: It's the beauty of our homeland and the fact that we are - rightly so - proud to be Swiss or of Swiss descent. But some things still haven't changed. When I ordered an ice-coffee and asked for a large glass of water, I was - politely but firmly - informed, that a small glass was included, but if I wanted more, I would have to buy a bottle! On the other hand, the taxi driver who took us up to the Munt tower in Schaffhausen said we wouldn't find a taxi up there for the return trip and suggested he just hang around for half an hour and would then drive us back - at no extra charge. It also appeared to me that the Swiss seemed to be happier. Or was it just the gorgeous weather that made everybody smile?

Anyway, I hope you'll enjoy reading this issue. I am still waiting for your 1st of August pictures, which I would like to publish in Swiss Review # 3.

Book and CD Reviews

Just call me Carroll...!

By Phil Henny

I guess you have to be a racing car fan to fully appreciate the book written by Phil Henny. Born in 1943 in Motagny près d'Yverdon, the French speaking part of Switzerland, Phil was trained as a precision mechanic at Paillard-Bolex, the wellknown Swiss movie camera company. From an early age his interest in automobile racing and his determination to be associated with the best teams, lead him to be part of the Shelby American crew who built the famous Ford MKIV which won the "24 Hours of Le Mans" in 1967. In the seventies, Phil contributed to the manufacturing and introduction of the dry-sump oiling system for NASCAR.

The title of the book relates to Phil meeting Carroll Shelby who put him at ease right away by telling him "Just call me Carroll...!" Leafing through the book, and just looking at all the gorgeous pictures, you relive a large part of racing history and its greatest actors, be it car racers or builders.

The book is available through most Auto book stores, at Amazon.com and at Phil's web-site: www.justcallmecarroll.com

From the Chocolate Part of Switzerland

By Esther Groninger

Not the first book that compares life in Switzerland with life in the US. Never the less it is the story of an interesting childhood. Esther grew up during World War II as the oldest of five children. Many readers will recognize and relive with the author the tribulations they also experienced. However, American life, first in Canada, then in the United States, can show it's ugly side. You know that her life hasn't been that easy when Esther admits that only God could have engineered circumstances the way they occurred, but she is thankful for his hand of protection over her. Esther met her husband in the US. They now live in Grand Rapids, Michigan. All in all, the book is easy to read and for some events even spellbinding. It is available at Amazon.com for $ 14.95

"Changing of the Guard" in Arizona - From Honorary Consul Max Haechler to Honorary Consul Alisa Jost

In June, Switzerland's Ambassador to the U.S., Urs Ziswiler, and the Consul General in Los Angeles, Brigitta Schoch Dettweiler, visited Phoenix to express Switzerland's appreciation for Max Haechler's almost 30 years of service to his country as Honorary. Now a successful businessman, Mr. Haechler and his wife Elsbeth have lived in Arizona since the 60's when they came here after their marriage. They raised four children, altogether a Swiss-American dream! Besides being very involved with his consular duties, Mr. Haechler founded the Arizona Swiss Foundation to support young people studying in Switzerland. Young at heart, Max continues to be very active in the Swiss community and expects to do so for many years to come. Amba-

"Location Switzerland" presented the advantages of investing in Switzerland at Thunderbird University. Afterward, Ambassador Ziswiler, Consul General Schoch Dettweiler and Consul Alisa Jost met with Angel Cabrera, President of Thunderbird University, and the distinguished Professor of International Marketing and native Swiss, Stefan Michel, and other faculty members.

During their trip the Ambassador and the Consul General, joined by the new Honorary Consul, Alisa Jost, also met with the Governor, Janet Napolitano, to discuss areas of mutual interest and to present credentials for the new Honorary Consul for the state.

They also met with Phoenix' Mayor Phil Gordon. Mayor Gordon related his cities very fast paced growth including light rail and plans for a rapid train between Tucson and Phoenix. The Ambassador discussed Switzerland's tremendous experience with rail and the resources Switzerland has for future cooperation on such a project.

One of the highlights was the evening organized by the Arizona Swiss Society, attended by many local members, with a much appreciated musical presentation of the "Swiss Misses", touring the United States. Switzerland is very happy to be so well served in Arizona! We warmly thank Max and Elsbeth Haechler once again for so many years of dedication and hard work and welcome Alisa Jost, supported by her husband Charles and the four lovely children, as our new Honorary Consul!

New Consul General in Chicago

Mr. Giambattista Mondada arrived in Chicago on August 9, 2007, to begin his term of office as Consul General of Switzerland responsible for the Chicago Consular District (IA, IL, IN, KS, MI, MN, MO, ND, NE, OH, SD, WI). Mr. Mondada came from Sao Paulo, Brazil. He succeeded Mr. Hermann Buff who retired at the end of May 2007.

Mr. Mondada grew up in Minusio, Canton Ticino, where his family had moved shortly after he was born in Küsnacht am Rigi. In the nearly 150-year history of the Consulate General of Switzerland in Chicago, Mr. Mondada is the first Consul General from the Canton Ticino. He joined the Swiss Department of Foreign Affairs in 1969 and has since served in different capacities in many countries. Between 1969 and 1989, he was assigned to the Embassies of Switzerland in Argentina, Kuwait, and Mexico as well as to the Swiss Mission to the United Nations in New York. He was also stationed at the Consulates General of Switzerland in Rotterdam, New Orleans, and Munich, where in 1972 he served as the liaison officer for the Swiss Olympic team. As part of his official responsibilities during these years, Mr. Mondada was entrusted with special tasks that took him to Baghdad and Montevideo. From 1989 to 2002, Mr. Mondada was in charge of the Swiss Embassies in Angola, Sudan and Bangladesh. In 2002, Mr. Mondada was appointed as Consul General of Switzerland for Sao Paulo, Brazil. During his short time in Chicago, Mr. Mondada has introduced himself to the community on various occasions: he undertook business trips to Ohio, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Many members of the Swiss community also got to know him personally at the Holiday Dinner of the Swiss-American Business Council (SABC), where he was the Guest of Honour. The Mayor of Chicago, Richard M. Daley, officially received him on November 8, 2007. Mr. Mondada is looking forward to meeting many more of his fellow Swiss citizens and to working with all of the different communities in his Consular District.

Mr. Mondada is married to Dr. Joke Mondada, Professor of Spanish and Linguistics at the University of New Orleans. In his free time, he likes to go on bike rides and spend time in nature.

South Carolina Mr. Hans Balmer passed away

It is with great sadness that I have to inform you, especially the Swiss citizens living in South Carolina, of the passing away of Mr. Hans Balmer, Swiss Honorary Consul for South Carolina.

He passed away on September 3, 2007 in Spartanburg after having served as Honorary Consul of Switzerland for 13 years. Mr. Balmer - lovingly supported by his wife Lucia - did an excellent job in representing Switzerland and the Swiss community with much pride, enthusiasm and professionalism in this part of the US. Although we knew about his illness, his passing came so unexpected and is very difficult to accept for all of us.

Besides having been the owner, President and CEO of SYMTECH INC., he still had time to serve on many local boards and committees, including the Spartanburg Humane Society, the Spartanburg Regional Healthcare System Foundation, the Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce, the USC's International Advisory Board and many others. As initiator and a volunteer coordinator of the Spot of PRIDE Beautification Program, Consul Balmer also had a special interest in promoting a green and healthy environment. He will be sadly missed by all those who knew him and were close to him.

For the time being the Consulate

Former Hon. Consul Hans Balmer

of Switzerland in Spartanburg SC will remain vacant. All inquiries and consular matters will be treated by the Swiss Consulate General in Atlanta, GA.

"Icy" reception for Consul General

Consul General Ulrich Hunn and his spouse Marie Claire honored the Swiss Club of Oklahoma with their first ever visit to Tulsa on the occasion of the traditional annual Christmas Brunch event. Over 40 participants dared to leave home to meet our guests despite the upcoming ice storm, which made national and international news due to the extended power loss and significant nature damages we suffered during the same weekend.

The Christmas Brunch took place at Inverness Village (www.invernessvillage.com), the first and only Life Care

Community in Tulsa providing extensive benefits in a gated community environment and health professionals on staff. Our long year members Bob and Dorothy Lengacher, who live at Inverness Village with other Swiss Club members, are the original founders and drivers of this unique place. They will leave a memorable legacy for many future residents.

The Chef of the Inverness Village Restaurant and his staff did an outstanding job to serve us a wonderful brunch which satisfied our culinary desires and Consul Ulrich Hunn offered a Champagne toast to the Swiss Club attendants. There were lively discussions going on at the various tables mixing Swiss of all ages and backgrounds. Many took the opportunity to inform both Ulrich and Marie Claire about their life and experiences in the USA and particularly in Oklahoma. When leaving we all were faced with icy roads but fortunately everyone got home safe without accidents.

A real Suisse experience!*

It was a family afternoon with my older sister Doris and her husband Markus, a day with a steady downpour, known to Swiss people only too well and feared by those of us that come to visit! A time where a Swiss restaurant "Seelust" am Bodensee, filled with countless people for lunch, "showed off" Swiss-cuisine at it's finest!
After a memorable meal, we stopped at my sister's beautiful house and got spoiled by all her "Gastfreundschaft". At 6PM, when it was time to say goodbye, my brother-in-law saw it first: a back-tire that was going flat! Our drive home to Tann/ZH, where my other sister lives in the old house where we all grew up, was in jeopardy! Markus and Doris knew whom to call - the owner of a BP garage down at the main street of Kesswil. The worried look in my sister's face said: "It's too late!". "Fyrabig" in Switzerland is early! What luck, he was still there!

What I remember most is the owner's unexpected smiling face, from the minute we got there, his confidence and knowledge of what to do was instant! His cool, unhurried voice as he pulled out a huge nail did not suggest the easy-way-out of patching it in fifteen minutes, to be drivable until we got home and deal with the tire the next morning - no! His idea was to fix it to last forever. His words! To me, a nail in a tire always meant a new tire.

Markus Inauen, the owner of the cleanest garage we had ever seen - "Switzerland-clean" the world has come to expect, told us it would take until about a quarter to eight - 'something' had to dry for a certain time. Markus, my brother-in-law, drove us to the garage at eight P.M. When my sister Beate asked, "How much"? He said: "40 Franken"! My ears and eyes showed disbelief! And they say Switzerland is expensive? I had reached for "50 Stutz", a tip for this after-hours-working garage-owner, long before he said 40 Franken.

On the way out, when I handed him that Swiss-bill, his eyes got huge - and a grin to remember forever with many "danke viel-mals" waving goodbye until we could not see him anymore.
High above, the clouds parted and a watery gleam of sunshine broke through. I turned up my face to this momentary brilliance: it had stopped raining! As we got closer to the Zürich-Oberland, we drove into a spectacular sunset, where the golden sun looked like it was gliding out of the sky, streaked with pink of its afterglow indelibly imprinted in my mind; it had turned into a beautiful evening. Looking at the beauty of this country I have called my own for many years, church bells ringing... cowbells in the distance, the sounds of Switzerland... what a great country to be from! My husband grew up in Wisconsin. His dad owned a Shell-garage where Lew's after school-hours were filled with work until all kinds of hours. No "Fyrabig" at 5.30 in America, for a garage on the main road of a small town, the only highway between Chicago and Minneapolis. I would catch Lew looking at that back tire for days, with watchful eyes. As for me? I didn't worry; I knew when Markus Inauen said "forever" that meant for a long time...

All the choirs and bands that received us so generously had previously been in California, some of them several times. So it was no wonder that each time our bus drove up to an event, lots of people were already waiting. And all of us had obviously inundated friends and family members with the details the elderly, to greet an old friend, sing a few songs for the residents and admire the breathtaking view of lake Geneva at our feet, vineyards sloping down towards the lake and on the opposite shore the Dents du Midi massive rising majestically into the sky. For the last three nights we would sleep in La Tour-de-Peilz, in a hotel directly on the lake, awakening in the morning to the quacks of swans and ducks.

Before singing our last concerts we were treated to another boat ride. This time from Lausanne-Ouchy to Chillon castle. Funny, this castle is one of the best known in Switzerland, as it is directly situated on a rocky outcropping on Lake Geneva. But only had a very short drive to Corseaux for the next Concert and a welcome drink consisting of a sampling of local wines. Saturday saw us rise very early. We had to be in Gland at 9 am, but coffee and croissants were waiting. We participated in a radio program called "Kiosque à Musique" (music shop). After that, we were treated to a nice lunch, then a short visit to the town of Nyon with its Roman ruins and then back to Gland for a rehearsal with their choir, dinner and our final concert.

On Wednesday we drove leisurely through the Emmental, admiring the farmhouses, some of them literally loaded down with flowers on every windowsill, porch and garden. Cows were everywhere, their bells ringing with rhythmic movements while they were grazing. The largest town so far, Kirchberg, was expecting us. We shared the public's attention with the Village Street Band and the Yodel

Once again we packed our bags, some of them getting heavier and heavier with souvenir gifts for children and grand children. Artist Monica Schmid silver, gold, platinum – any metal

I met Monica, who hails from Frauenfeld, in the 70s – a fashion designer for the young and daring. I remember well, when Monica painted – a student of Sam Provenzano in San Francisco. A bit later she also exhibited ceramics. If one can combine art and its creativity – one has to think immediately of this strong, energetic Swiss artist somewhere hidden away in the East Bay of the Greater San Francisco Bay Area. Hidden away? Not so. This individualist operates on all her fronts. Her home (re-designed a dozen years ago by Swiss architect Reiner Keller) is an extreme joyful place to visit. Of her modern jewelry in steel or silver, gold or platinum, plain or displaying rare or semi-rare stones, each in itself is a masterpiece. Her studio is organized. Since she works with a variety of metals she explains that it is almost a ritual to her to absolutely clean her place of work after each 'episode' or should we rather say 'contact' with any given metal.

Monica is definitely an artist to be contacted – if something special asks for a one of a kind piece of remembrance as she works directly with her clients. At the very moment I caught Schmid's expressions of her art – another Swiss designer entered her studio: Regula Weill-Allenspach – and who doesn't know her flower designs and her large sculpturist designs at the De Young Museum in San Francisco and many other events? While I concentrated to study a fine collection of tremendous silver pieces, I heard Allenspach go wild about some metal earrings. When the studio went quiet I knew that Dave (Regula's husband) would have to send a check later. But knowing that Regula is a wise shopper, I suddenly realized that Schmid's art must be somehow affordable – and it is. What made me aware once again of Monica Schmid? A sudden meeting, totally unexpected, in the Glacier Express from Chur to Zermatt. Speaking of a small world! Monica Schmid is rightfully proud of her website, www.monicaschmid.com, where a large part of her designs can be seen. She can be contacted by phone 510 538-8253 or e-mail: metalschmid@comcast.net

On Saturday, October 6, members and guests met for a Trolley tour through the lovely historic town of Punta Gorda. Everybody was astonished to see the perfect restoration work after the damage caused by hurricane Charley in 2005. After the one-hour tour, our hosts, Maria and Franz von Atzigen, welcomed us in order to celebrate the one-year anniversary of their new business, the "Swiss Connections". Tables were set up in the art gallery, and a delicious homemade dinner consisting of ham, potato-salad and lasagna was served. The food, including an authentic "Crème-Schnitte" for dessert, was outstanding. On November 1, members were treated to a "Schlachtfest" at the Schandroch's in Bonita Springs. Adi, a retired chef, had prepared a typical meal including blood and liver sausages, smoked pork chops, boiled beef, vegetables, potatoes, and a few mousses for desert. The wine was flowing freely and everybody had a good time.

The traditional "Chlaushock" took place on the first Saturday in December at the President's House. As usual, the members of the Board of Directors were in charge of setting up the tables and chairs in front of the house; helping guests park their cars in the back, and serving the meal. tion was the piñata, which they managed to demolish in a few tries.

The beginning of 2008 was celebrated with class on a luxurious yacht, provided by the Sanibel Harbor Resort. Smaller and larger tables were ready, so the 58 members and guests enjoyed a generous buffet brunch with numerous hot and cold dishes. Dessert consisted of delicious cakes and cookies and whoever had made a New Year's resolution to lose weight, just about blew it then! Faces lit up when the Club offered a glass of champagne, so everybody could cheer and wish each other all the best and good health for the upcoming New Year.

Oklahoma Zweiacher's check out their roots

Our history begins with our great-grandfather Benedikt Zweiacker (that is how the name is spelled in Switzerland), born October 20, 1833 in Jegenstorf, Switzerland. Because of religious and economic reasons, young Benedikt and his brothers left Switzerland and arrived at the port of New York Jan. 29, 1900. They all were listed as farmers and able to read and write. "Young" Benedikt was 66 years old. His wife Maria had passed away in 1887. Soon six of his nine children were to follow. They settled in Indian Territory, north of El Reno, now Oklahoma, where an established Mennonite community existed. This explains the concentration of Zweiachers and Zwiacher (as the name is spelled here) in that area. Farm families in those days were large. No need to guess why the Zweiacher family is the size it is today.

Fast forward to the 1950's and 1960's: Some Zweiacher folks began a family reunion every two years in El Reno. It seems like each reunion has a "special" something. In 2006, cousin Alexander Soland, whom none of the family knew and who knew none of us, showed up, thinking he was one of the very few Zweiacher's left. Did he ever get a surprise! He suggested the Zweiacher family meet in the off year of 2007 in Switzerland where he had contacts. So, between Alex, Ed and Tom, whose father was the driving force to start our reunion, and a lot of hard work, the trip became a reality. From June 24 to July 7, 2007, twenty people traveled to Switzerland.

After a fairly easy first day we arrived at the hotel right on the Vierwaldstättersee in Hergiswil. The quaint and unique beauty of the Swiss landscape had already engaged our group. After a good nights rest we began our first full day with adrenalin high and great expectations. After the short drive to Alpnachstad we rode up to Mt. Pilatus in the steepest cogwheel train in the world. What a magnificent view from the top! The thought could creep into your mind that we had just witnessed the best Switzerland had to offer and that the trip would be "downhill" from here. Nothing could have been farther from the truth. Each day we witnessed and enjoyed a different facet of the beautiful and intriguing Swiss landscape.

Of course we had to visit Jegenstorf, the small town where we all hailed from.

It was very interesting and worthwhile. We met with officials and were treated so well. We presented them a hand carved wooden Zweiacher family crest and a typical Oklahoma native Indian scene picture. The crest was carved by one of the Zweiacher family members in attendance. Then we were taken on a tour, which included a cheese factory, the village castle and other interesting sights followed by a banquet at the senior residence Rotonda where a number of our native Swiss Zweiacker relatives met us. It was certainly a memorable day. The tour was designed so we would circumnavigate the whole of Switzerland. We visited all four of the language areas. In doing so we saw a chocolate factory, another cheese factory, an "alphorn" shop, where we were treated to some beautiful "alphorn" duets, a winery, rode the train to the Jungfrauoch, know what this story is about. Steep, narrow hairpin turns... that road had them all. They were so sharp the bus could not make them in one hitch. So, Markus our great driver, would turn, stop, back up, stop and turn again to make the curve. While sitting in the front seat of the bus, in front of the wheels, I could look down and see nothing but precipice. What a view! I only looked down once and decided the view across the valley was more scenic and a whole lot less nerve racking. The scenery I mentioned was just a part of the ever changing, ever beautiful and always intriguing landscape we all enjoyed so much. God blessed Switzerland with natural beauty unequalled and the Swiss citizens have done a wonderful job of enhancing it. Those of us who are of Swiss origin have reason to be proud of it and a responsibility to maintain our heritage. I can certainly say when the twenty people in our group, ranging in age from early twenties to middle seventies, returned home, we could say in unison, "A GOOD TIME WAS HAD BY ALL!" I just wish more of our family could have experienced it.

Times Square, New York City. In his speech, the Ambassador highlighted the importance of the sharing of ideas and consultation among key political and business leaders from all over the world, especially in these challenging times of very volatile stock markets. Concerning the growing fear of an imminent recession in the United States, he suggested tackling the macroeconomic imbalances on national and global levels to avoid further disturbances: "We have to keep in mind that the fundamentals of the global economy are good." By referring to growth centers on several continents and scientific and technological breakthroughs, which could lead companies to NASDAQ, he reminded not to let a shortsighted bear hide the many bulls on the horizon.

 CONSULATE GENERAL OF SWITZERLAND IN NEW YORK

California
Fine watch making freelancer

Born in 1961, Urs Ryser comes from Bienne. A watch making capital where he spent all his school years, including four years at the Technicum, in the micro technical section. It was there that he discovered the art of watch making, a bit by accident.

With his diploma under his belt and just turned 20, Urs Ryser entered the job market. Rado, in Langnau, hired him as a repairer but he was dying to be elsewhere. So, at the age of 23 the young man risked all and settled California. That was in 1984. He's still in the region more than twenty years later. In 1993 he decided to start his own little company situated in Kentfield, still in the same region, barely an hour from San Francisco.

There were many difficulties. Urs Ryser was aware of the growing competition from service centers for major brands. "It was hard" he says, "because it became increasingly difficult to obtain spare parts."

This is why Urs Ryser chose to create his own watches, a way of getting by while keeping his independence. "And also to have fun because I like creating my own complications." He specializes in gold and silver models, the crafting of which doesn't require sophisticated machines. Pieces traditionally bear the name of the person that makes them and the place where they are manufactured. That's why his watches are called Ryser Kentfield. Putting the name of a small California town on products made by a Swiss professional pleases him. However the aim of Urs Ryser's watches, which sell for between 1,200 and 12,000 dollars for a diamond model, isn't to rival the prestige of the big names. Furthermore, the watchmaker still works on top name models like Rolex, Audemars Piguet, Patek Philippe or Cartier, which are part of his everyday life. "My pieces are a way of ensuring a basic income by doing what I love. And they allow me to remain independent, although the situation of small watchmakers has become a challenge."
