Switzerland in autumn

Culinary trips and hikes on a range of mountain peaks in Central Switzerland.

Take a culinary journey through Switzerland at www.MySwitzerland.com/aso and embark on a virtual discovery of the culinary delights of the different regions.

One of the most diverse cuisines in the world

Fondue, raclette and Zürcher Geschnetzeltes – everyone is familiar with these iconic dishes from Swiss cuisine, which are almost as famous as the Matterhorn. Yet Switzerland is home to many other culinary delights. Swiss cuisine is one of the most diverse in the world – Bernese Platte with rösti, sausage from French-speaking Switzerland, capuns from Engadine and polenta with braised beef from Ticino are but a few of the delicacies. Each region has its own authentic specialities. Only the finest traditional cooking is found in Switzerland, the land of milk and honey. Switzerland also produces fine wines and excellent distilled beverages. Even the water is a delicacy. And let's not forget the artistic creations of leading Swiss chefs. Nowhere has as many gourmet restaurants as the nation of four languages and cultures.

Hiking and mountain trips in Central Switzerland

Rigi. At the heart of Switzerland, amidst an imposing alpine landscape surrounded by Lake Lucerne, Lake Zug and Lake Lauerz, the “queen of the mountains” ascends to a height of 1800 metres in a unique location with stunningly beautiful natural surroundings. The Rigi is a classical hikers' paradise with more than 100 km of hiking trails as well as 15 km of Nordic walking paths. During the holidays, there are supervised children's activity days, family walks at sunrise, and boccia and minigolf tournaments. The Rigi – the mountain of the four seasons – can be reached by train from Arth-Goldau and Vitznau, and by cable car from Weggis. An exclusive special offer is available to Swiss people abroad for CHF 222 per person (which includes two nights' accommodation at the Rigi Kulm half-board and a three-day pass on the Rigi railways) at www.MySwitzerland.com/aso.

Stanserhorn. Nature has always been treated with great respect on the Stanserhorn. In order to make trips to the mountain even more enjoyable, trained rangers are now circulating to give visitors a better insight into nature there. One visitor had heard there were lots of chamois on the Stanserhorn. He desperately looked for them with his binoculars but simply could not find them until the Stanserhorn ranger showed him exactly where to look. Rangers on the Stanserhorn provide this kind of assistance every day. They point out peaks, locate marmots, take photos and explain flora and fauna. The departure point is Stans in the Canton of Nidwalden.

Titlis. The high mountain valley of Engelberg in Central Switzerland offers a summer and winter activity programme with plenty of relaxation also available. The nearby Titlis mountain and its glacial park can be reached via the Rotair cable car which rotates 360°. Visitors enjoy a magnificent view of the central Alps at an altitude of 3020 metres. The landscape can be explored on foot along various topical trails (mountain flower trail, the "Tickle Path" and the Kneipp cure trail, etc.). Halfway up to the Titlis is the walkers' paradise of Trübsee, a popular starting point for hikes to a number of mountain lakes.

Engelberg (1000 m) in the Canton of Obwalden in Central Switzerland. Benedictine monastery from the 12th century.

Pilatus. You can reach Pilatus Kulm on the world's steepest cog railway from Alpnachstad, or by cable car from Kriens. At the top, visitors can enjoy the breathtaking mountain-top panorama and the unique view of Lucerne, the Alpine Chain and the lakes of Central Switzerland. There is also fun and action for families and adventure seekers at the interim stations. The "golden tour" is a wonderful excursion for lovers of railways and boats. It includes travel around the Pilatus by cog railway, cable car, boat, train and on foot, passing through Lucerne, Kriens and Alpnachstad.
