NEWS FROM SWITZERLAND

THE SWISS ON HOLIDAY

According to statistics drawn up on behalf of OECD, 2.4 million Swiss went to Italy in 1961, 1.7 million to France, 694,000 to Federal Germany, 435,000 to Austria, 138,000 to Spain, 119,000 to the Netherlands, 107,000 to Egypt, 95,000 to Yugoslavia, 61,000 to Belgium, 41,000 to Great Britain and 14,000 to Greece. By comparison with 1960, the biggest increase in the number of Swiss tourists was recorded by Egypt (plus 75.9 per cent), followed by Greece (plus 55.9 per cent) and Spain (plus 31 per cent).

SELF-SERVICE IN SWITZERLAND

Today Switzerland possesses food stores: 46 per cent of their total turnover is accounted for by completely self-service stores. If to these are added stores with partial self-service facilities, the figure for the turnover of the retail food trade accounted for by this type of sale rises as high as two-thirds. This high percentage places Switzerland ahead of other European countries. These facts are the result of a survey carried out in Switzerland by a cash register company. The upward trend in the change-over to self-service experienced in Switzerland last year is due not only to the growth of the big chain stores but also to the modernisation of the independent retail trade, 6.7 per cent of whose stores have so far adopted complete self-service methods.

JAPAN AT THE LAUSANNE FAIR

Although the Lausanne Autumn Fair or Swiss Comptoir, as it is known locally, is a strictly national event, each year it places a special pavilion at the disposal of a different foreign country, which thus has an opportunity of making its economy better known to the Swiss people and the many foreign visitors to the Fair. From September 7th to 22nd, 1963, Japan will be the guest of honour of the 44th Lausanne Fair. Its presence will be organised by the Japanese Government through its ministries of trade and industry, represented by "Jetro," Japan's official trade promotion organisation; the exhibition as a whole will be placed under the auspices of the Japanese Ambassador in Switzerland. September 9th will be set aside as a special Japanese Day within the programme of events organised by the Lausanne Fair.

CENTRALISED REMOTE CONTROL OF ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES

One of the main problems facing power plants is that they are required to supply huge quantities of power at certain moments of the day while at other times the demand drops considerably. It is therefore necessary to provide them with equipment enabling them to cope with very high but short peak periods. So as to even out consumption as far as possible, a system of centralised remote control has been adopted for apparatuses with heavy consumptions, such as water-heaters, run on power produced during periods when demand is less heavy. In New Zealand, for example, the Dunedin City Corporation is equipping 25,000 water-heaters on its network with individual remote control apparatuses made in Switzerland, some 10,000 of which are already in operation. The distribution network in question covers an area of over 470 square miles with a population of about 100,000 inhabitants.
