NOTE TO MEMBERS

All individual Swiss Society members (those who are not members through one of the Swiss Clubs) who have not yet paid their annual subscriptions, please do so today and, together with your payment, please send in full details of your name and address for inclusion in the new Swiss Members address booklet to be produced shortly. Many thanks for your kind co-operation.

PINGU, THE PENGUIN

Forget all the teddy bears, cuddly toys, Barbie dolls, golliwogs, at the moment Pingu is the rage amongst the children in Switzerland. The cute little penguin comes in all sizes. Here a 15 meter replica has been blown up in front of the Matterhorn for the benefit of a team of Japanese Television people who wanted to film Pingu in its real environment of snow and ice, forgetting though that penguins usually do not live at 2000 m in the alps and thousands of kilometres away from the sea and their only source of food: fish. But nevermind, any trick is good enough to publicize the Swiss alpine scenery to the eager Japanese tourist market.
