Mineralogical Association of South Africa (MASA)

The Mineralogical Association of South Africa held its inaugural meeting at Geokongress 79 at the University of Port Elizabeth on the 26th September 1979. The aims of the Association are:

1. to promote the study and application of mineralogy in the minerals industry and related fields;
2. to coordinate mineralogical studies in South Africa;
3. to promote liaison of South African mineralogists with their colleagues locally and in other countries.

At present MASA has approximately 120 members in South Africa, and would like to extend its membership overseas.

Members are accommodated on the following basis:

1. Corporate members of the Geological Society of South Africa (GSSA) are eligible for Ordinary Membership of MASA, and will be admitted on application.
2. A Student Member of GSSA shall be eligible to become a Student Member of MASA on application.
3. Any person with a real interest in the aims of MASA may become an Associate Member on application and approval by the Executive Committee.
