

Zeitschrift: SPELL : Swiss papers in English language and literature
Herausgeber: Swiss Association of University Teachers of English
Band: 17 (2005)

Rubrik: Notes on contributors

Nutzungsbedingungen

Die ETH-Bibliothek ist die Anbieterin der digitalisierten Zeitschriften. Sie besitzt keine Urheberrechte an den Zeitschriften und ist nicht verantwortlich für deren Inhalte. Die Rechte liegen in der Regel bei den Herausgebern beziehungsweise den externen Rechteinhabern. Siehe Rechtliche Hinweise.

Conditions d'utilisation

L'ETH Library est le fournisseur des revues numérisées. Elle ne détient aucun droit d'auteur sur les revues et n'est pas responsable de leur contenu. En règle générale, les droits sont détenus par les éditeurs ou les détenteurs de droits externes. Voir Informations légales.

Terms of use

The ETH Library is the provider of the digitised journals. It does not own any copyrights to the journals and is not responsible for their content. The rights usually lie with the publishers or the external rights holders. See Legal notice.

Download PDF: 08.02.2025

ETH-Bibliothek Zürich, E-Periodica, <https://www.e-periodica.ch>

Notes on Contributors

LUKAS ERNE is Professor of English Literature at the University of Neuchâtel. He is the author of Shakespeare as Literary Dramatist (Cambridge University Press, 2003) and Beyond "The Spanish Tragedy": A Study of the Works of Thomas Kyd (Manchester University Press, 2001), and the editor of Textual Performances: The Modern Reproduction of Shakespeare's Drama (Cambridge University Press, 2004).

CORINNE FOURNIER has taught at the Universities of Pécs (Hungary), Geneva and Neuchâtel. She is the author of several articles on utopia and the fantastic, and is completing a doctoral thesis at the University of Geneva on the representation of cities as places of the fantastic in European literature.

PIUS TEN HACKEN is Lecturer for Linguistics and Translation at the School of European Languages of the University of Wales Swansea. His recent publications include "Derivation and Compounding" in the Morphology Handbook edited by Geert Booij et al. (De Gruyter, 2000), "Has There Been a Revolution in Machine Translation?" in the journal Machine Translation (2001), and "Chomskyan Linguistics and the Sciences of Communication" in the journal Studies in Communication Sciences (2002).

MARTINA HÄCKER is Lecturer at the University of Konstanz. She has published a monograph, Adverbial Clauses in Scots: A Corpus-Based Study (Berlin: Mouton de Gruyter, 1999), and articles on grammatical and phonological aspects of English dialects, as well as the use of language in medieval and modern literature. She is currently engaged on research on the history of h-dropping and h-insertion in English.

KAREN JUNOD received her licence ès lettres in English, German, and art history from the University of Neuchâtel in 1999. In 2000, she was awarded a Berrow Scholarship to study at Oxford University, where she is about to complete her D.Phil on artists' biographies in eighteenth- and early nineteenth-century Britain. She has published on Henry Fuseli's illustrations of Macbeth in Word and Image.

FABIENNE MICHELET teaches Old and Middle English literature at the universities of Geneva and Lausanne. After studying at the Vatican Library in Rome and at the University of Oxford, she received her doctorate from the University of Geneva in 2003. Her dissertation is a study of spatial representations and imaginary geography in Old English literature. Her other research interests include historiography and gender studies.

ALBERTO PEREZ-GOMEZ is the Bronfman Professor of Architectural History at McGill University in Montreal, where he directs a postgraduate programme in History and Theory. His latest book (with Louise Pelletier) is Architectural Representation and the Perspective Hinge (MIT Press, 1997).

MYRIAM PERREGAUX teaches Contemporary Literatures in English at the University of Geneva and is currently completing a doctorate at Trinity College, Dublin, on "Contemporary Literary Chronotopes of London." She is Research Associate in the Centre for Gender and Women's Studies, Trinity College, from which she holds an M.Phil. She has published several articles on the relations between gender and whiteness in literature.

DENIS RENEVEY is maître d'enseignement et de recherche in Medieval English at the University of Fribourg. He has published a monograph, Language, Self and Love (2001), and several articles on vernacular theologies. He is editor of the series Religion and Culture in the Middle Ages (University of Wales Press). He is currently working on an edition of the Middle English Doctrine of the Hert and a monograph on the devotion to the Name of Jesus in late medieval England.

ALAN ROBINSON is Professor of English at the University of St Gallen. He has also taught at the Universities of Oxford, Lancaster and Cologne and at all the German Swiss universities. His most recent book is Imagining London, 1770-1900 (Palgrave Macmillan, 2004).

MANUELA ROSSINI was an assistant in the Department of English at the University of Basel where she wrote a PhD on the changing meaning of the family in early modern drama and culture. She is currently working as a post-doctoral researcher at the University of Nijmegen. Her book project is called Science/Fiction: Imagineering the Future of the Human.

IRIS SCHALLER-SCHWANER is a lecturer at the Centre for Language Teaching and Research at the University of Fribourg. Her most recent publication is "Unpacking before take-off: English for Swiss Purposes in code-mixed advertisement texts for 14-20-year olds," Bulletin suisse de linguistique appliquée (2003).

DAVID SPURR is Professor of English at the University of Geneva. His most recent book is Joyce and the Scene of Modernity (University Press of Florida, 2002).

CORNELLA TSCHICHOLD taught English linguistics at the University of Neuchâtel until recently and now teaches at the University of Wales Swansea. Her main research interests are English phraseology and computer-assisted language learning.

PATRICK VINCENT is Professor of English and American literature at the University of Neuchâtel. He is the author of The Romantic Poetess: European Culture, Politics and Gender, 1820-1840 (University Press of New England, 2004).

DAVID WILSON is Lecteur in English language in the English Institute at the University of Neuchâtel. His teaching and research interests include English phonology and the cognitive approach to metaphor.

LAURA WRIGHT is Senior Lecturer in English Language at the Faculty of English, University of Cambridge. Her most recent book is an edited volume, The Development of Standard English, 1300-1800: Theories, Descriptions, Conflicts (Cambridge University Press, 2000).

GISELA ZINGG received her licence ès lettres from the University of Neuchâtel in 2004. She is assistant in English language and literature at the University of Geneva.