THE STOCK EXCHANGE OF ZURICH.

(By Leu & Co.'s Bank Limited, Zurich.)

Zurich, July 6th, 1937.

In the retrospection the month of June passed most eventfully. An accumulation of disturbing factors was influencing the stock exchanges everywhere. It is of only very recent date that some brighter prospects seem to bring about a general betterment. Since weeks prices as a whole moved up and down nervously. Turnovers, however, remained very small and with the exception of a few more animated days in New York and Paris, all stock exchanges suffered from a lack of business. The atmosphere was very tight at times, as political occurrences such as the cancellation of the Baron von Neurath's visit to London or the "Leipzig" incident showed clearly enough the tenseness of the situation. Hardly this settled, America reported aggravated labour troubles which finally made it necessary for the Government to intervene. The matter is still pending and the outcome anything but definite. Also a new taxation bill against foreign stock holders is in preparation which make it rather hypothetical for them to speculate in American securities.

Even more than New York's long lasting reluctance, the Swiss markets were affected by the economic development in France. The Blum cabinet had to go and was replaced by men of the radical fraction. The general firmness of the "Rentés" upon this change was of very short duration, as the public finances turned out to be disquietingly bad. The new finance minister had practically no other choice but to devalue the French franc once more by approximately 16%. Even now a recuperation at the Paris stock exchange remains uncertain, showing drastically how very scared French investors still are. The few French railway bonds quoted here were under pressure most of the time and read considerably lower than a month ago.

A striking contrast, however, were Swiss gilt-edged securities which showed excellent disposition. With regard to the public's reserve towards stocks in general, the desire for safety created a steady demand for such bonds. Conversion loans are issued continually and Federal as well as Cantonal and Communal issues are being oversubscribed. The average yield of our first bonds decreased to 3.41% as against 3.47%. Comparatively small fluctuations underwent Belgian and Austrian bonds, while German securities finally improved. A very good showing made the 6% bonds of the Comp. Hispano Americana, which advanced by 3.4% in the last few days.

As far as the stock market is concerned the uncertainty everywhere reduced the turnovers and also affected quotations. As a rule purely Swiss stocks resisted much better, while companies with interests abroad, or even foreign stocks showed more nervousness. Among the Swiss trust companies Elektrobank, Motor-Columbus, Holding Boveri, Indelec, Metallwerte, etc., range slightly lower. Saeg upon its reorganisation, Transportwerte and I.G. Chemie in the contrary register gains not exceeding 20 Fr. Banking shares were well in demand being favoured by investors desiring some higher yield. Swiss industrials found little interest and for a while the outbreak of a strike with the Sulzer company affected most stocks of the machine branch i.e. Saurer, Brown Boveri, etc. A late rally made them gain back some of their lost ground. Nestlé encountered a sharp advance in accordance with the monetary troubles in France, but lost again most of it. South American stocks as for instance Hispano and Italo-Argentina were well in demand most of the time, while Royal Dutch dropped occasionally below the 1000 Fr. mark to recuperate quickly.

The general situation is still uncertain although the immediate outlook seems to justify further moderate advances.
