The unfavourable balance in Swiss trade during January-June, 1950, amounted to 142.4 million francs, less than half of the corresponding figure for January-June, 1949 of 326.9 million francs. Two lists of customs rates have been issued: list A contains the stipulations governing new Italian duties and a list B contains the new stipulations governing Swiss duties. The customs duties in the latter list which exceed rates ruling earlier will not come into effect immediately. The sole exception is the monopoly tax for white wine specialities, sweet wine and vermouth which will come into effect immediately.

Over 1,400 enquiries and fifty definite entries have been received for the Sixth International Competition for Musical Performers, to be held at Geneva from September 25th to October 8th. Entries will be accepted up to July 15th. All enquiries to the Conservatoire of Music, Geneva.

During August and September the open-air theatre at Interlaken is giving a series of weekly performances of "William Tell." Three hundred persons will take part, as well as several herds of cattle and horses. The costumes are faithful reproductions of those of the epoch of the national hero, and the artists are all local amateurs. The well-known Swiss organist, M. Hans Vollenweider, who has played in many English and continental churches, gave a delightful recital of music by Bach, in the Cathedral, Bury St. Edmund's, on Wednesday, August 2nd.

A large and appreciative congregation was present for a recital arranged in connection with the bicentenary of the great composer. It is seldom that an audience has the opportunity of hearing an all-Bach recital, and M. Vollenweider's playing was of an extremely high order, demonstrating that he is a very brilliant organist. Perhaps the outstanding work of his programme was the G Minor Fantasia and Fugue.

A large aircraft hangar was recently completed at the Swiss airport of Kloten-Zurich. The hangar covers a span of 245ft. without intermediate stanchions, the roof being carried on seven steel arch ribs of the lattice truss type. The trusses rest on reinforced concrete walls, which are founded on wooden piles. The arch ribs are of non-symmetrical three hinged arch design and the hangar is provided with two large collapsible doors which entirely cover its frontage. The roof consists of thin corrugated aluminium sheets placed on wooden laths. The roof steelwork weighs about 136 tons, representing about 6 lb. per square foot of covered area. The contractors were Messrs. Wartmann and Company, of Brugg; Professor F. Stüssi was the consulting engineer.

Grâce à sa faculté d'adaptation aux goûts de sa clientèle américaine l'industrie suisse des mouchoirs de coton brodés a vu passer son exportation de 566 mille douzaines en 1948 à 859 mille en 1949; cet essor se confirme en 1950.

Les ateliers de Sécheron-Genève ont construit un transformateur géant de 160 tonnes destiné à l'Algérie.

Transporté par route jusqu'à Lyon, puis par eau jusqu'à Alger, il sera mis en place à Arba après un nouveau voyage terrestre.

Le principe de la toupie (utilisation de l'énergie cinétique) vient d'être appliqué à une invention suisse de portée historique. Après 3 ans d'essais avec une locomotive gyroscopique, la fabrique de machines d'Oerlikon a mis au point un gyrobus électrique qui fonctionne entre Fluelen et Altdorf. Ce véhicule ne demande pas de ligne aérienne; il se charge en très peu de temps pendant les arrêts aux stations.

La plus grande entreprise de l'industrie américaine du bois vient d'acquiescer les droits d'exploiter l'invention de l'ingénieur suisse Fahrni, de Zurich, pour la production de panneaux préfabriqués. On construit déjà de tels panneaux sous licence en Suisse, aux Pays-Bas, en Belgique et en Tchécoslovaquie; d'autres centres de production vont s'ouvrir au Danemark et en Espagne. L'industrie suisse a reçu commande pour plus de 5 millions de francs de machines brevetées.

Le nouveau téléphérique Crans-Bellalui, construit par Bell et Cie S.A. Kriens, est unique en son genre en Europe. Il comporte 50 cabines à 4 places permettant un débit horaire de 480 personnes.

Une enquête effectuée en Angleterre au sujet des programmes radiophoniques préférés du public a mis Schwarzenburg à la 3ème place sur 26 émetteurs. Le service britannique d'outre mer et "La voix de l'Amérique" suivent aux 5ème et 7ème places.

Le numéro de juin de la revue militaire norvégienne (officielle) est consacrée à la défense suisse. On y loue en particulier la rapidité de notre mobilisation, les bons rapports entre subordonnés et chefs, la bonne volonté du soldat et le travail hors du service.

M. Robert Schnyder de Wartensee, directeur de l'institut de psychologie appliquée à Lausanne, a fait une série de conférences à Vienne, en 1949. La Chambre de commerce viennoise l'a invité à donner, pendant une quinzaine de jours, au mois de juin 1950, une nouvelle série de cours et de conférences qui ont eu un très vif retentissement dans les milieux économiques les plus étendus et dont la presse autrichienne a parlé fort élogieusement.
