The following anniversaries are reported from Switzerland:—

Heinrich Endemann (80), Principal Manager of the "Luzerner Brauerei zum Eichhof, A.G." He reached the rank of Colonel of cavalry in the army and held the post of "Platzkommandant" of the town of Lucerne for many years.

Dr. Hermann Balsiger (75) from 1917-1941 a member, and for several years, President of the "Obergericht" of Zurich. [A.T.S.]

A number of mountaineering accidents have recently occurred.

A medical student of the University of Berne, Paul André Jacot, lost his way, whilst on an excursion near Evolène (Ct. Valais) and was found dead at the foot of a rock.

Paul Horber (aged 17), from Herisau, and Erich Tanner (aged 62), were killed when on an ascent to the Kreuzberg.

Two mountaineers, lost their lives when traversing a ridge between the Muveran and the Pitz Gabotz. The names of the victims, both members of the section Diablerets of the SAC, are: Armand Schnorf (aged 48) engineer of Lausanne and Emile Masson, typographer of Epalinges. [A.T.S.]

The undermentioned Members of Parliament are not seeking re-election at the next Swiss Parliamentary elections which will take place shortly: von Roten (Liestal); F. Rusca Chiasso; Armand Droz (Estavayer) and Hans Sappeur (Zurich). A.T.S.

A piece of the Matterhorn weighing about 150lb. was shipped on board a Swiss airliner for transport to New York, where it is to be used as a decoration in the Swissair Company's offices. The stone, which is roughly the shape of the Matterhorn, was obtained by guides from Zermatt at a height of nearly 10,800ft., on the western ridge. It was brought down to Zermatt partly by means of ropes, partly on the backs of the guides, and partly by mules.

Slaughter subsidies granted by the Swiss Confederation to eliminate tuberculous cattle have been raised for lowland farmers from 40 per cent. to 50 per cent. of the loss involved in slaughter. Highland farmers receive a 50 per cent. subsidy.

Field Marshal Lord Montgomery has written to the Swiss authorities at Gstaad asking that his ski jumping cup next year be held on Sunday, February 17th.

He plans to visit Gstaad for winter sports.

The increase in international express goods traffic has resulted in an acute shortage of electric locomotives in Switzerland. The line between Chiasso and Basle is particularly hit and Swiss Federal Railways has been forced to reintroduce a number of steam locomotives, which now cover some 4,000 kilometres daily on electrified lines.

M. Jost Guyer, Wireless operator, of Swissair for the last twenty-two years, has flown, until now, three million kilometres.

In order to help cut the cost of winter sports holidays in Switzerland this year an association whose 40 members control 31 skilifts, 8 chairlifts, 5 sledge hoists, 5 combined ski-and chairlifts and one aerial cable-railway are this season issuing books of tickets which offer a considerable reduction in price.

Preparing for the winter sports season well in advance, Swiss transport organisations have issued a special fare list for a large number of mountain railways, aerial railways, chairlifts, skilifts and sledge hoists. Details can be obtained from the Swiss National Tourist Office, 458 Strand, London, W.C.2, or any travel agent. Winter sports resorts in the six main regions — Western Switzerland, the Valais, the Bernese Oberland, Central Switzerland, North-east Switzerland (including Glarus) and the Grisons —

MAKE A NOTE OF THE DATE NOW!

THE SWISS SEEN BY A SWISS . . . "KANTÖENLIGEIST."

To start off this short essay on a subject with which we are all very well acquainted, admittedly or not, I can think of nothing better than a short conversation I overheard one day in a tramcar of Switzerland's capital. A local trader, who was obviously a great admirer of our national hero of the wheel, said: "Gäll Du, der Kübler het ne wieder mal zeigt was d'Schwyzzer chöi". Replied his friend: "Goppel ja, de Färdi ischt halt en Zürcher!" This reply, which is by no means only typical of an inhabitant of the Canton of Zurich, seems to set the whole problem and to answer it at the same time.

"Kantönligeist," if an adequate description can be given at all, is a harmless and friendly competition between Cantons, an urge to shine in front of one's neighbour who has the misfortune to be born in another part of the country, and lastly the satisfaction of being a little different by either dialect, tradition or outlook. It is a never-ending source of amusement for the many and a cause of extreme annoyance to the few.

It may lead to heated arguments, but never does it result in public disorder or civil war. "Kantönligeist" is on no account to be taken seriously, for if it were, a "Bunter Abend" on Saturday night or a "Quart d'heur Vaudois" would be impossible to listen to without switching the programme off. Newspapers don't help matters, either. The majority of jokes contained in the space reserved for this purpose are sure to have some connection with the subject under discussion.

Talking of jokes, who doesn't know the little tale according to which a crocodile, sent as a gift from the Basel Zoo to the one in Zurich, died of anger and frustration within the hour of its delivery, having realized that the biggest mouth was no longer his. Well, it is quite obvious what the story is referring to, but do the people concerned mind? Not a bit! On the contrary, they hit back.

And what about the eternal state of war between the honorable cities of Geneva, Lausanne and Neuchâtel, each trying to convince the others that the French spoken by its inhabitants is purest? Nobody feels in the least offended, one just nods, smiles, and keeps believing in one's own point of view.

All these examples are but an imperfect illustration of what "Kantönligeist" means and will always mean to the Swiss: it is a part of his national character without which he wouldn't prove a worthy son of Wilhelm Tell.

Helveticus.
