It was officially announced in Berne that Colonel Marcel Mercier, an attaché in the French Embassy, is no longer a member of the staff and has left Switzerland.

Colonel Mercier joined the embassy in Berne in June, 1952. He is an intelligence officer of wide experience and his work in that capacity was far flung, the activities of both Continental Communists and North African insurgents coming under his survey. He was a close friend of M. Dubois, the former Attorney-General, who committed suicide after the first reports of the espionage affair were published. M. Dubois, a warm admirer of France, did not disguise where his sympathies lay at the time of the Suez crisis.

VARIOUS.

The Senate of the Swiss Society of Natural Sciences unanimously passed a resolution calling for a suspension of nuclear bomb tests pending an international conference of scientists to assess the dangers of increased radio-activity for mankind.

The resolution stated that "the increase of ambient radio-activity may not only represent an immediate peril for man and for living creatures as a whole, but may also entail long-term genetic disturbances in many successive generations”.

This pronouncement followed a statement by the Swiss Federal Commission for the observation of radio-activity, which said that “atomic explosions, if continued for some time at the present rate, would cause a danger to human life which must not be underestimated”.

Swiss Sensational Luminous Wrist Watch. A leading Swiss watch factory has invented a new luminous wrist-watch. It is independent from the old-fashioned pattern of radium-illuminated figures and, instead, is equipped with a miniature battery and a tiny electric bulb. The new invention not only enables its bearer to tell the time in pitch darkness but can also be used as a flash-light, as its beam is powerful enough to light up door-plates, telephone directories and note-books. Moreover, it has a built-in Morse transmitter for short-distance communi-tions. Its battery lasts several years and can be recharged in a trice. In addition to these revolutionary new features the watch is also water-proof, shock-proof and anti-magnetic, and is said to “cost not more than any other good Swiss wrist-watch”.

the entire cast of the show bursts into yodelling and alphorn-blowing as soon as the conducted tourists appear (and switches to dixieland jazz when they are out of sight). Other highlights of the tour include auditions of Swiss folk music, a motor-boat cruise on Lake Zurich, a visit to a hill-top restaurant famous for its panoramic view of the light-flooded city, and a midnight call at an elegant nightclub of the non-yodelling variety. Everywhere free drinks and snacks are provided, and participants are taken back to their hotels after the tour.

Swimming and skiing all on the same day is one of the combinations offered to sport fans in summer-time Switzerland. More than 500 ski enthusiasts are to compete at Jangfrauoch in the traditional International Ski Race on July 7th and can cool off afterwards in the swimming pool at the nearby resort of Wengen where the "bathing season" starts as early as June 15th.

The Sailing School at Hilterfingen on the Lake of Thun this year was already open for the Easter holidays. Other sections of the school, at Spiez and Neuhaus, were in operation at Whitson. A staff of teachers and a fleet of boats are ready for action, living up to the school's motto "It's Easy to Sail" and endeavouring to make "good sailors" also out of those who do not own sailing-boats. Sparkling Lake Thun, which is described as one of Europe's most rewarding sailors' playgrounds, will be the arena of international sailing regattas from June 20th to 28th. At Whitsun, also, the Lake Thun Water Ski School at Gunten, which owns the area's fastest motor-boat, resumed its activities.

"Summer in Switzerland" Events 1957. Just issued by the Swiss National Tourist Office, a 31-page brochure entitled "Summer in Switzerland" Events (with a cover featuring yachts sailing over a blue lake, and electric railways speeding over boldly constructed viaducts, to some holiday paradise) gives details of the most important events scheduled for the season which has just commenced. There are approximately 700 attractions of a sporting, cultural, folklore and social character. A number of celebrations to commemorate events of between 75 and 2,000 years ago have also been planned. For instance, there is the Gotthard Jubilee to mark the opening of the Gotthard Railway 75 years ago (June 1882), one of the most important north-south routes across the Alps. June is also the month in which the trim mountain resort of Champéry in the Canton of Valais is celebrating its centenary. A quincentenary stands even higher in the public estimation; Stein am Rhein, a picturesque little town on the Rhine, will be celebrating 500 years as a member of the Swiss Confederation by presenting special theatrical performances in the medieval market-square from July to August. Fribourg, the university town famed for its fine old buildings, will be celebrating, from the middle of June onwards, its foundation by the Dukes of Zaehringen 800 years ago. Bale, the stronghold of humanism on the Swiss Rhine, can survey a history two and a half times as long when, on 23rd August, it observes the 2,000th anniversary of its foundation with celebrations staged on an elaborate scale. Of less historical significance, but just as attractive, are the brilliant Rose Weeks in Geneva with festival ballet performances from 15th to 29th, a grand old-fashioned hackney-coach race at Interlaken on 16th June, and a beauty competition for motor-cars with a "Bal d'Elegance" which the high Alpine spa of Scuol-Tarasp-Vulpera has announced for 10th August.

Festive June in Lausanne. From 6th June to 2nd July Lausanne is holding international festival weeks with guest performances by some of the most famous ballet companies, symphony orchestras, conductors and theatre groups in the world, including the Hungarian National Ballet, the London Festival Ballet, the Stuttgart Opera and the Comédie Française. At the same time some thirty hotels and restaurants are staging a "Fortnight of Gastronomy". This attraction, appropriate enough to Lausanne, the centre of French-Swiss cooking, is to conclude with a small exhibition of the culinary art.

A Parking Garage for 320 cars was recently opened in the heart of the old town of Berne, under the name "Métro Autopark". It is the biggest car park of its kind in Switzerland. No point in the business centre is more than five minutes' walk from the garage, which is built underground so as not to spoil the picturesque appearance of the town.

Several new hotels have been completed in various Swiss towns in time for the summer season. In Winterthur, far famed for its music and art, there is the luxuriously appointed "Garten Hotel" standing in its own splendid grounds. Its fifty bedrooms and fifty bathrooms are all fitted with air-conditioning. Opposite the SFR station in Bale the elegant Hotel

New Suspension Cableways carrying passengers up to rewarding panoramas and ski descents in Switzerland have either started work already or will be in service during 1957 in the following places: In Gryon and Leysin in the Vaudois Alps, from Leukerbad to the Gemmi-Pass, another one in the ski-region of the up-and-coming mountain resort of Verbier in Canton Valais, from Gornergrat above Zermatt to the Stockhorn, from Zermatt to the Schwarzsee (1st section), from Arosa to the Weisshorn, from Berninahaeuser to the Diavolezza, the best-known mountain for ski-ing in the Engadine, and another from Flims, one of the most popular winter and summer resorts in the Grisons, up to the Cassongrat.

A league against noise — now a real scourge in Swiss towns — has been formed, and sections have been organized at Berne, Basle, Lucerne, Geneva, and Zürich under the leadership of prominent medical men, jurists, architects, and journalists.

The objects of the league are manifold. It intends to dispel the too widely held opinion that noises which are an outcome of progress and mechanization cannot be avoided. It also hopes to convince the public that noise, which is one of the scourges of modern life, is endangering public health.

Architects and industrialists belonging to the league will examine means of silencing noisy machines, principally in the building trade, and endeavour to obtain the co-operation of all industrialists.

The league is to devote much of its activity to trying to suppress the evils of noise produced by machines, motor vehicles, tramcars, loudspeakers, wireless sets, and gramophones, as well as by midnight street orators and singers. There will also be a Press campaign and appeals to the authorities.

The Swiss Co-operative Movement has presented a new helicopter, for which nearly £40,000 was collected from members, for the use of Hermann Geiger, the Swiss Alpine pilot.

Swiss Federal railwaymen have received a wage increase of 9 per cent to meet the higher cost of living. The increase is called an "adjustment award." Last year the increase was 7 per cent.
