SOMETHING ABOUT SWISS CHEESES

Switzerland enjoys world-renown for her natural beauties, her majestic alps, the flowery meadows, the mountain Chalets and last but not least for — the quality of her cheeses.

Herd of cattle, grazing on lofty pastures, feed on succulent, fragrant grasses and herbs and produce a rich and delicious milk. The cheese makers, men who generally have been trained in a Federal School of Agriculture, turn this milk into the famous Emmental loaves and these big wheels serve as raw material for the manufacture of the carton cheeses.

Under the trade mark "CHALET", Switzerland's "Alpina" factory has for the past 40 years been processing a Portion Cheese (also called Petit Gruyère) of extra fine quality, with a delicious flavour and possessing a high nutritive value. Thousands of the large Emmental Cheeses (wheels) are transformed every year by ingenious machinery into millions of portions, packed in round boxes. Scrupulous care is taken by the factory to ensure cleanliness and purity at every stage.

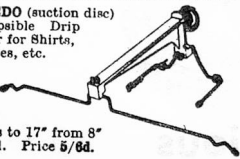

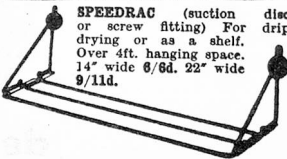

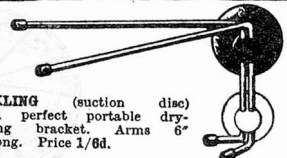

Highly valued in the household, Chalet Cheese is a boon for unexpected visitors. Gourmets are well acquainted with assorted Gruyère portions (variety pack), containing an admixture of Cream, Swiss Wine, Smoked Ham, Caraway, Herbs etc. All are excellent and most tastes can be satisfied due to their variety.

Every CHALET box of 8 oz. net weight contains around five pints of unrivalled Swiss Milk.

VARIOUS.

Professor Auguste Piccard, and his son Jacques Piccard, Swiss scientists, have been awarded the Draxel Science and Engineering Prize of the Draxel Institute, Philadelphia. [A.T.S.]

The entertainment "Sion à la lumière de ses étoiles", "Sion in the light of its stars", which proved so popular last year, is to have another run of several months in the capital of the Valais, starting on 17th April. Seated on the rocky eminence between the Valeria Church and the ruins of Tourbillon Castle, visitors from far and wide were able to relive the eventful history of the town and see its monuments picked out by floodlight. It may be confidently expected that the show will prove as big a draw this year as last.

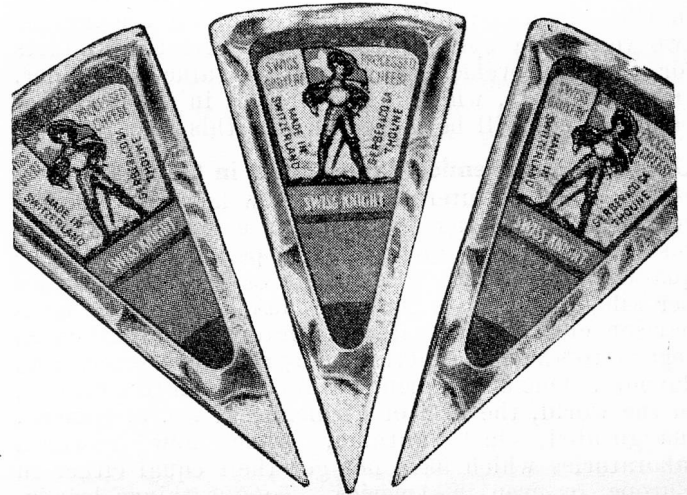

* * *

The time-honoured Landsgemeinde or plenary assembly of the people has retained its full authority in certain rural cantons, where cantonal elections and votes are not the sober and impersonal business they have become in the towns, but remain an impressive ceremony enacted by all the male voters gathered together to elect officials and pass legislation. Visitors come from far and near to witness these Sunday assemblies, which fall this year on 24th April (Sunday after Easter) in Trogen, Appenzell, Sarnen and Stans, and on 1st May at Glarus. On Thursday, 7th April, the people of Glarus celebrated their historic "Näfels Procession" in commemoration of the Battle of Näfels in 1388.

Zurich has always shown greater interest in its spring festival, the Six o'clock Chimes, than in the Shrovetide Carnival. Falling this year on 24th and 25th April, the celebrations take the form of a colourful children's parade on the Sunday, followed on the Monday by the grand pageant of the guilds, including many groups in historical costume, which winds up by the lake, where the "Böögg" or effigy of winter is burnt amidst general rejoicings. In the evening the various guilds go visiting each other and the narrow streets of the old town are alive with comings and goings and the romantic gleam of lanterns.
