SWISSAIR INTRODUCES NEW SEASON TICKET

Swissair has introduced a new season ticket for travel on its domestic network in Switzerland. It is valid for six months, costs Frs.500.— (about £41 10s. 0d.) and consists of a booklet of flight coupons entitling to travel at specially reduced rates. Using the new ticket it costs, for instance, Frs.32.— to fly from Zurich to Geneva or vice versa compared with the normal fare of Frs.50.—. The coupons are transferable, so that several people can travel on the same day over the same or different sectors. The ticket can only be bought in Switzerland.

A unique feature is that the purchaser deducts on the ticket the value of each coupon used and establishes the balance. Having made his booking by telephone, he also enters on the ticket the details of the reservation made, the passenger's name and the sector to be flown.
