SUCCESSFUL COMPTOIR

The Swiss Trade Fair in Lausanne, known as the "Comptoir Suisse", was held from 7th to 22nd September. It was the 49th this year, and as has become traditional, the "Pavilion of Honour" was given to two foreign countries, this year the Netherlands and Rumania. For the first time, a Swiss Canton has been officially received: the Thurgau, whose exhibition "Thurgau Presence" was opened on 6th September, whose "Official Day" took place on 21st September, and whose own painters Hans Bruehlmann, Helen Dahm, Adolph Dietrich and Karl Roesch were represented at a special art exhibition.

As tradition has it at any of the national fairs and shows of some importance, there is an "Official Day" when members of the Government, Army, Politics and Press, representatives from industry, commerce, trade, culture and science take part. This year in Lausanne, Federal Councillor Bonvin headed the illustrious guests (700) and delivered an address on the Confederation's economic and financial policy, on communications and agriculture and finally referring to the sad events in Czechoslovakia.

Every year, the "Concours Jean Louis" takes place, when the Dorin wines of the Vaud are tasted in a competition. A record number of men took part, and of these 4,724, 1,530 were able to guess correctly the five Dorins.

Not even the bad weather spoiled the Fair, and for the fourth time, the number of visitors exceeded the million mark.

OLMA 1968

The Swiss Agricultural and Dairy Fair was held in St. Gall from 10th to 20th October. At the opening, Federal Councillor von Moos addressed a large gathering of official guests, including parliamentarians, high officers of the Army, members of the Diplomatic Corps and the Churches. The representative of the Swiss Government talked about Swiss agriculture and the changes which had taken place in its structure, but also in the demands made by the consumers.

During the fair, there were several special events such as a cattle show and a wood exhibition. The number of visitors to this, the 26th OLMA, was slightly lower than last year, 355,000 having been recorded.
