points, at least as far as Roma. Fares, too, would be helpful, but I'm really content with what has been offered so far and I recommend the program highly.

I've considered getting this program, but first I need a bigger hard disk; my wordprocessor already takes up over 16 megabytes out of a meagre 75 Mb. For railtour operators, it is, I think, a near essential, since it makes it easy to explore many more alternative jaunts. As a superior computer game, the electronic Kursbuch has great attractions but, even on a laptop, it hardly compares for convenience with the cheaper paper version when riding the Swiss rails. The old fashioned version also bounces when dropped, and provides a quick way of checking the crossing points on single track. However, if I could work out the logistics of getting a computer and printer to an exhibition, it would make a wonderful feature on a SRS exhibition stand.

RhB mouse mat

At a computer show held at London Olympia last December, amongst the numerous novelty design mouse mats on display was an example depicting a RhB green-liveried Ge4/4¹ hauling a short passenger train. I could not identify the location, but think it might be on the Scuol-Tarasp branch. The price quoted at the stand was £5.00. Anyone interested should contact Cardinal Computer Products Ltd. at 01825 724019.

EC2 Rembrandt

I was interested in the paragraph on the EC2 Rembrandt on p.15 of the December 1994 issue. The core part of the train is always SBB stock, with additional DB coaches between Emmerich and Basel SBB, but the refurbished UIC stock is unusual. Normally this train is composed of new-generation international coaches. At least one of the sets is currently running with a DB restaurant car in red and ivory livery with a Buffet Suisse menu and crew.

A Swiss connection with Bavaria

Complete trains of SBB stock run from Zürich to München via Lindau through the linked valleys of the Allgäu in southern Bavaria, rising to some 2000 feet near Oberstaufen, an ancient small town on the Salt Road from Hall-in-Tirol to notherne Europe. Large parts of the valley resemble the Emmental in Switzerland. This must have struck a Swiss citizen who, in 1827, established the manufacture here of Emmental chees. this is now a significant industry.

The Emmental breed of cows seem to be less evident in Switzerland today so, if you want to see them in abundance and enjoy excellent cheese, go to the Allgäu!
