

Zeitschrift: Textiles suisses [Édition multilingue]
Herausgeber: Textilverband Schweiz
Band: - (1989)
Heft: 80

Artikel: London fashion designers use swiss fashion fabrics : magic& mystic Autor: Scott, Marie
DOI: <https://doi.org/10.5169/seals-795195>

Nutzungsbedingungen

Die ETH-Bibliothek ist die Anbieterin der digitalisierten Zeitschriften. Sie besitzt keine Urheberrechte an den Zeitschriften und ist nicht verantwortlich für deren Inhalte. Die Rechte liegen in der Regel bei den Herausgebern beziehungsweise den externen Rechteinhabern. Siehe Rechtliche Hinweise.

Conditions d'utilisation

L'ETH Library est le fournisseur des revues numérisées. Elle ne détient aucun droit d'auteur sur les revues et n'est pas responsable de leur contenu. En règle générale, les droits sont détenus par les éditeurs ou les détenteurs de droits externes. Voir Informations légales.

Terms of use

The ETH Library is the provider of the digitised journals. It does not own any copyrights to the journals and is not responsible for their content. The rights usually lie with the publishers or the external rights holders. See Legal notice.

Download PDF: 15.03.2025

ETH-Bibliothek Zürich, E-Periodica, <https://www.e-periodica.ch>

LONDON FASHION DESIGNERS USE SWISS FASHION FABRICS

CONCEPT+ REALISATION: JOLE FONTANA

TEXT: MARIE SCOTT

PHOTOS: ERWIN WINDMÜLLER

Styling: Mike Niklaus

Accessoires: Bally, Jean Beverly, Butler & Wilson, Wolford

MAGIC & MYSTIC

● Like some mysterious figure emerging from the mists of a magical land, a new presence is making itself felt in the dawning design themes for the 1990s, now being presented by British designers.

The presence is essentially feminine, abundant and rooted in Nature. It is seeping into the British culture, exerting an influence on the arts and effecting the very lifestyle of the British.

The embodiment of this presence is the New Woman, a mixture of old and rich traditions and of modern, educated liberalism. She has been born out of the Green Movement and will be leading families and society towards a more caring, more in tune with Nature attitude. And, as seen in the latest designs, she is to be clothed in the same mixture of old and new, in styles that emphasise a voluptuous womanliness, whilst at the same time maintaining a modern freedom.

And in their choice of materials to suit the New Woman, British designers are turning away from the crisp, hard fabrics of the 1980s decade, towards all manner of lighter, more supple, more decorative and figure flattering materials that must combine quality with environmentally friendly production.

In this, Swiss textiles have strong appeal. The leading designers have long appreciated the best of Swiss materials and now many of the new, younger names are also keen to use them. From the finest lawns for the gauzy magical creations included within the ethnic and surreal sectors, through to the most ornamented and decorative of embroidered and sequinned fabrics for the more sophisticated designs, Swiss made textiles are enjoying renewed attention from British designers at all levels.

The richness of Swiss materials at their best ties in with the new mood sweeping through the London design salons. They represent a complete swing away from the "poor" and tattered rags that have clothed the trendy London young for most of the '80s. A whole new generation is slowly awaking to the realisation that beauty is more desirable than ugly. The bizarre and the shocking, the aggressive and the macho that have ruled the London street fashion scene are retreating. For the 1990s, the New Woman is going to be proud of her attributes. She is going to want to be beautiful once more, in a natural and healthy fashion — and with a little design magic.

*C*aroline Charles

The plain lines cut of this costume do not distract from the flattering feather motifs and festive gleam of the brocade from

Abraham

Lindka Cierach

A dominant net effect emphasises this slender evening dress in a delicate material – overprinted, façonné, double organza from

Schubiger + Schwarzenbach

B
en de Lisi

The charm of this straight, slender evening dress is in the asymmetry of its rich gold guipure embroidery from

Bischoff

Helen Anderson

For the really great occasion – the gleaming red satin of this evening dress contrasts dramatically with the clever use of black spachtel lace from

Forster Willi

B
en de Lisi

A magic combination of black and gold in this trouser ensemble with kimono jacket worn with a velvet and crêpe Georgette blouse decorated with all-over gold embroidery from Bischoff

Nicolas Georgiou

The traditionally sporting line of a windcheater suit in studied contrast to the rich silky shimmer of its reversible satin with ottoman stripes from

Stünzi

*O*rient + Occident

This soft, sparkling dress sets the scene with a swing and its wide bell skirt shows the unusual fabric to advantage: striped gold lamé with stretch

cloqué effect from

Weisbrod-Zürcher

Paul Costelloe

The restrained absence of superfluous detail in the cut of this two-piece draws attention to the delightful design in fine wool print from

Christian Fischbacher

Jacques Azagury

This delicate and flattering, figure emphasising cocktail dress

with appliqué pink petals on black tulle with gold embroidery from

Jakob Schlaepfer

Helen Anderson

This ensemble has two eye-catchers: magic blue suede and rich black guipure braid decoration

from

Forster Willi

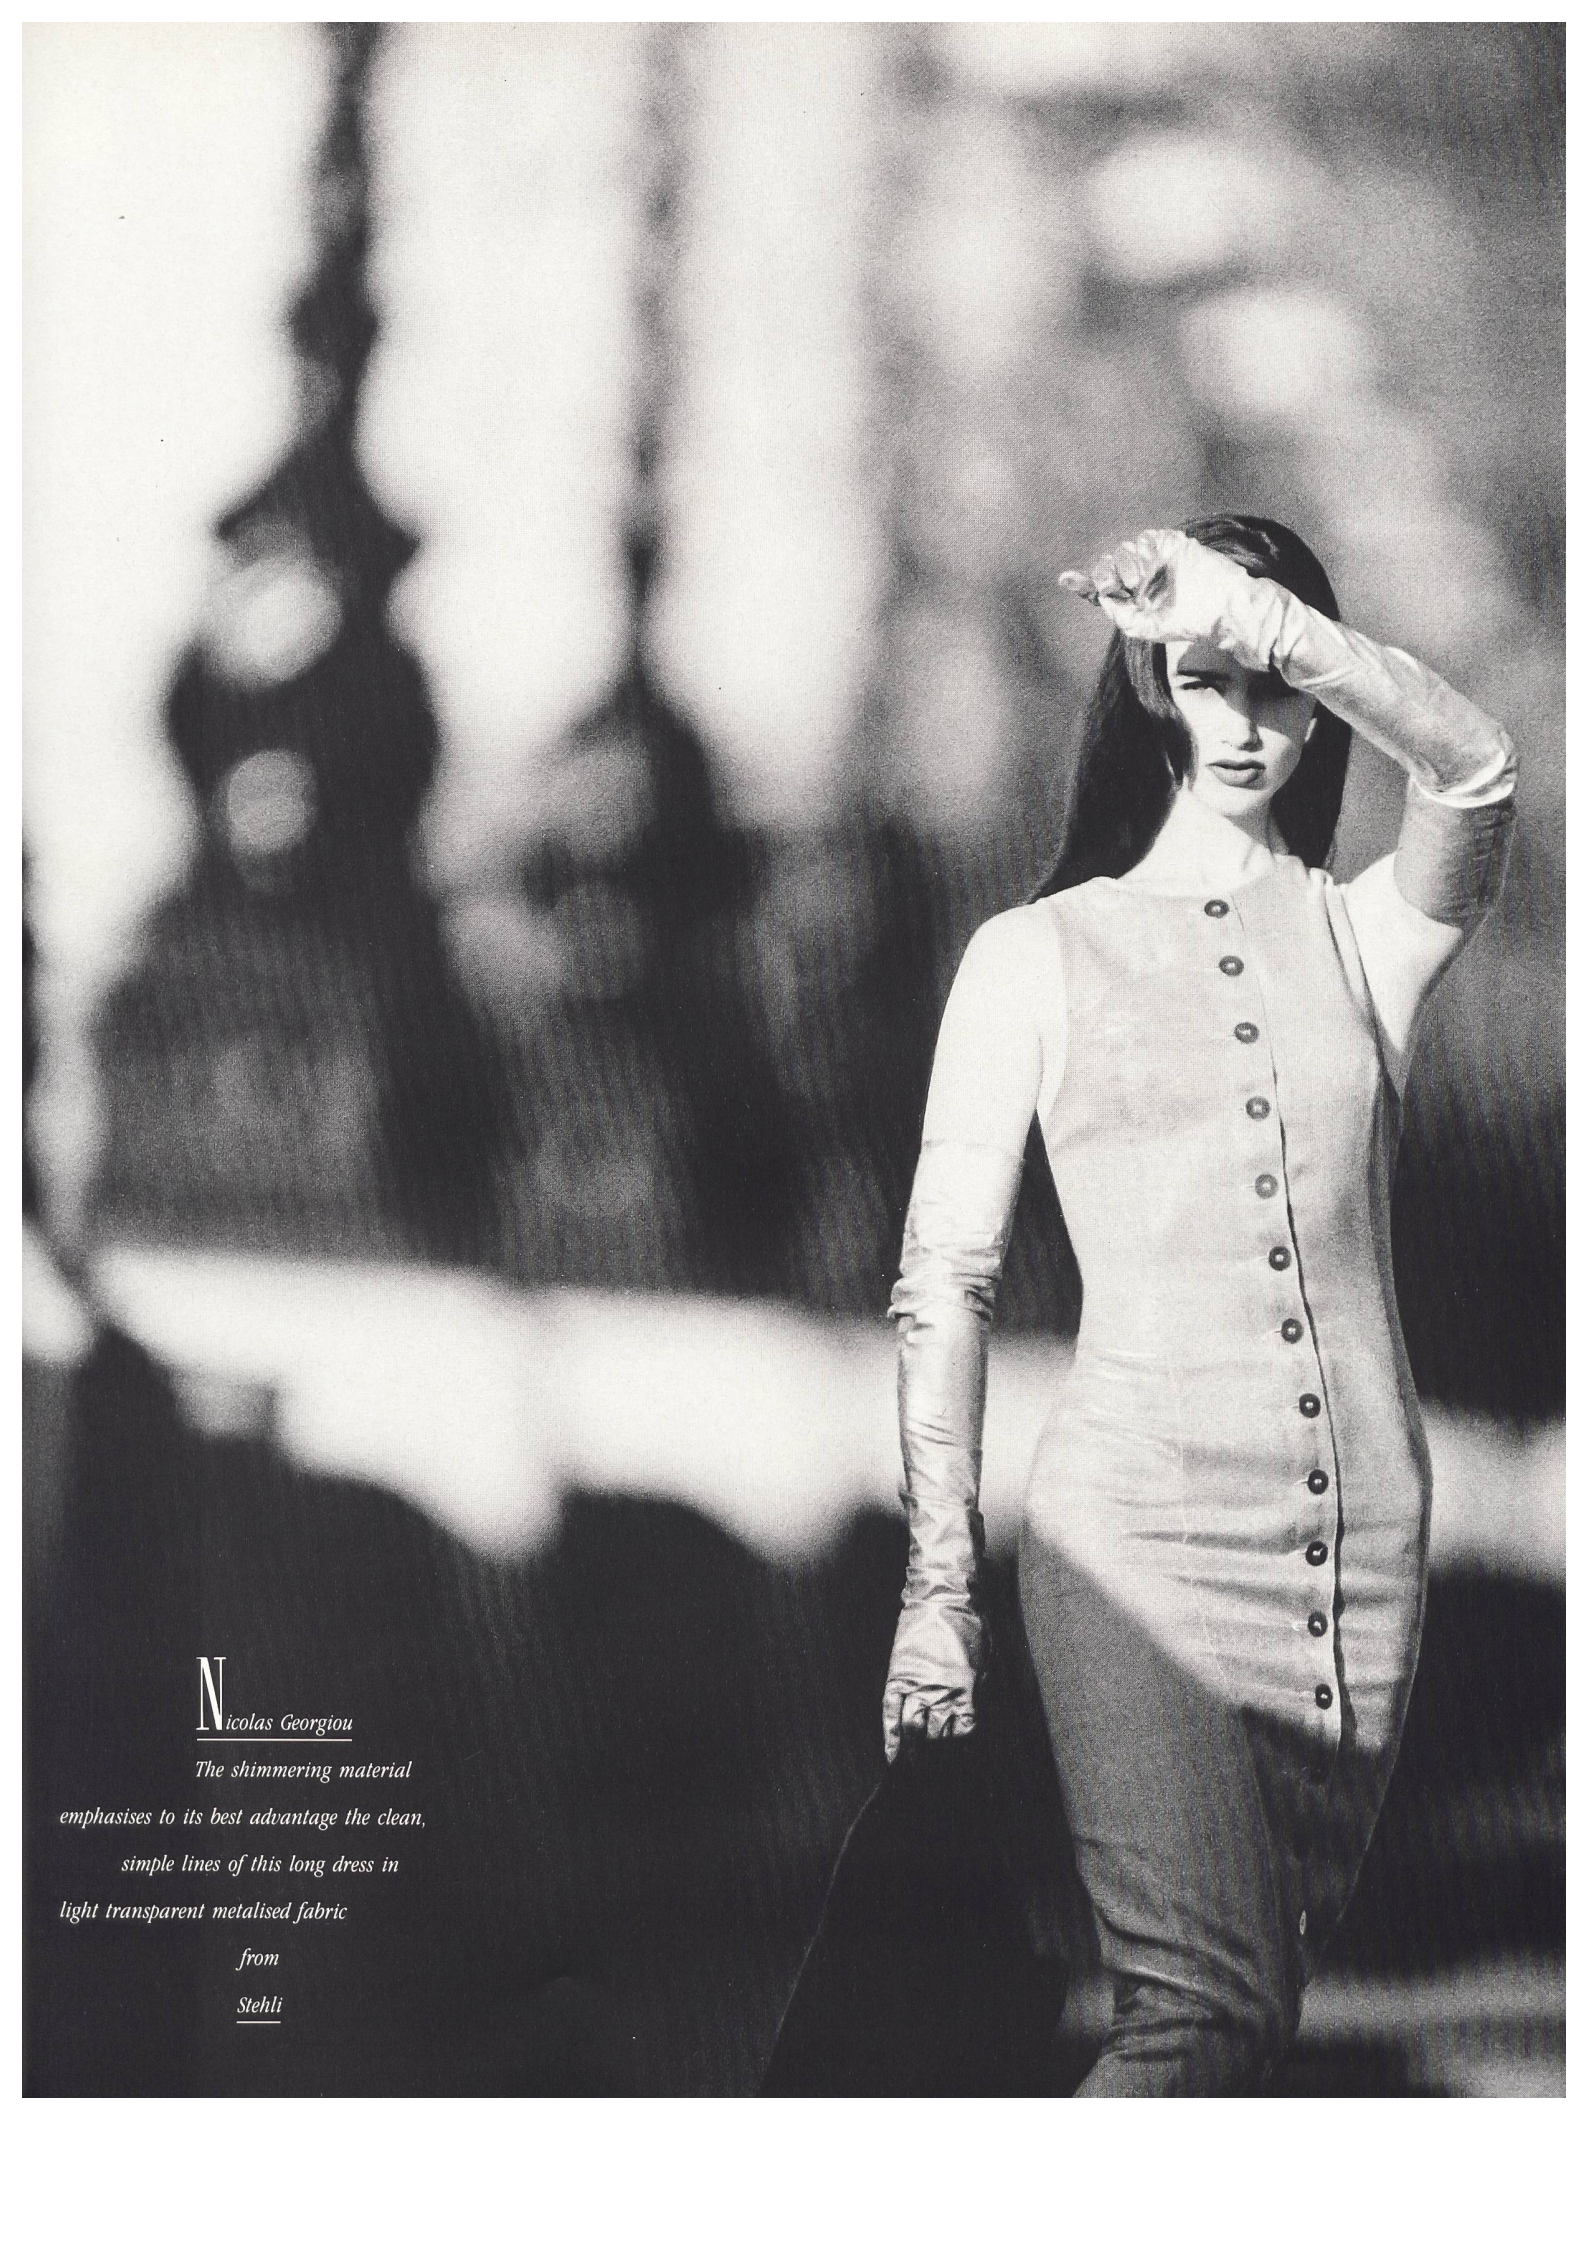

*A*ntony Price

The asymmetric coils of this black background print with its cellophane effect and silk fringes shroud the figure giving it an air of mystery and seduction. From Jakob Schläpfer

*O*rient + Occident

A humorous contrast between bare skin revealed by the cleavage and the decorous hood combined in this slender evening dress in parma violet ottoman from Weisbrod-Zürer

Nicolas Georgiou

The shimmering material emphasises to its best advantage the clean, simple lines of this long dress in light transparent metalised fabric

from

Stehli

Antony Price

A slinky, clinging evening dress – unapproachable but sexily attractive

thanks to the delicate printed paillette fabric from

Jakob Schlaepfer

Lindka Cierach

Magic moments and a mystic mood are the qualities of this long evening dress in exquisite reversible

Jacquard organza, overprinted with oxidized colours from

Schubiger + Schwarzenbach

